4	C : Reading Passage : Read the following passage and match each paragraph with one of the headings . Write the letters (A, B, C, D) in front of the numbers of the paragraphs. There is one extra heading Headings (A) Use interesting and new words in your speech. (B) Use an index card in your speech. (C) The audience wants you to be successful. (D) Use pictures to show specific points. (E) The importance of pauses in speech 40. After you've written your speech, it can be helpful to put it on small index cards. They are easier to carry around, and because you don't want to spend your entire time on reading your notes, index cards will help you feel more willing to have a quick look at the cards when you open them. But don't use index cards as a support and try to pay attention to your audience as well. 41. An audience is made up of people who are not unlike you. They come to hear you because you have something important to say. Also, because they do not want their time to be wasted, it's in their best interest for you to succeed. 42. Pauses add variety to boring speeches. If you do not include pauses, you might as well sing your audience a bedtime lullaby - the effect will be the same. While pauses are always important, it is critical to have them in every occasion. 43. Your speech will get very boring if you repeatedly use the same words. So use interesting and different words and phrases and keep things new, and avoid using repetitive sentences very often in your speech.
6	D : Reading Comprehension : Read the following passage and answer the questions as required. Every body knows about earthquakes. Suppose you feel the ground or a building shake. You might think, "earthquake" even if you don't live anywhere near an earthquake zone. Or suppose you are watching a science fiction movie and a big crack opens in the earth, and the tall building comes crashing down. "Earthquake!" However, there is more to earthquake than this, and the more you know about the science of earthquakes, the more interesting it gets! For one thing, earthquakes can happen either on land or under the ocean. Earthquakes on land cause most of their damage when they occur in heavily populated areas, especially when they start fires. Earthquakes under the sea sometimes cause big waves that are extremely powerful and dangerous when they hit land.

One famous earthquake was the Great San Francisco Earthquake of 1906. As the earthquake hit San Francisco, it overturned stoves and gas lamps, which started fires all over the city. To make the problem worse, the earthquake also broke the main water line, making it difficult for firemen to put out the fires. For three days the fires burned , damaging much of the city.

Another amazing, but dangerous, event caused by earthquakes is a tsunami. Tsunami is a Japanese word meaning "harbor wave". These big ocean waves are often caused by an earthquake under the ocean, and can travel at speed of 500 miles per hour or more. In the past, tsunamis have destroyed whole villages and countries, and they remain a threat to people who live on the seaside or on an island.
